Monthly Fund Manager's comment

April kicked off with the much anticipated "Liberation Day" during which President Donald Trump announced a two-tier tariff structure: a baseline 10% tariff applied to imports from all countries and an additional country-specific "reciprocal" tariff, much higher than investors' expectations. In the first week of April major indices fell c.10%. At the same time, long-dated Treasuries sold off, the dollar fell hard against every G7 currency, and credit spread widened rapidly. Probably spooked by the negative reaction of different asset classes, the White House then temporarily reduced the previously imposed reciprocal tariffs on most US trade partners to a flat 10% for 90 days to encourage negotiations, while sharply raising tariffs on Chinese imports to 125%. This was enough for equities, with all major indices back to pre- "Liberation Day" levels, also helped by a better than anticipated 1Q25 reporting season.

Anima Selezione Europa had an absolute performance of +1.0% vs benchmark return of -0.7% (+1.7% active return). Both Stock Picking and Sector Allocation contributed positively. In particular, positive contribution came from Industrials (OW in Siemens Energy and Eiffage), Consumer Discretionary (OW in Fielmann), Telecom (UW in Deutsche Telecom, OW in Telecom Italia), while negative contribution came from Utilities (OW in Veolia), Real Estate (UW in Vonovia) and Technology (UW SAP). During the month, we increased the OW in Industrials and Telecom, while we cut the UW in Healthcare and we reduced the exposure to Insurance. Moreover, we continued to increase the UW in Energy and Consumer Discretionary.

The rebound in equities from the lows reached in early April has been stronger than expected: the support has come not only from the 90-day pause in tariffs in order to encourage the dialogue between the United States and its commercial partners, but also from the stronger-than-expected 1Q25 earnings season, from the stabilization in the US Treasury and in the dollar and from the tightening in credit spreads. Moreover, positioning in equities was light and provided further support to the stock market. However, we believe that the drop in soft data will ultimately translate in softer hard data, hence we believe that the probability of a US-recession remains higher than before the "Liberation Day". In Europe, German fiscal stimulus announcement happened and, even though we continue to believe that it can be transformational not only for the country's economy but also for European defense, the first investments will start in the second half of the year and it will take some time to have positive spillover effects on GDP; Russia-Ukraine peace talks started, but no significant progress has been made so far and some experts suggest that negotiations could continue at least until the end of 2025. As a result, we remain tactically cautious with a strong preference for European Domestic stocks.
